PREPARATORY COURSE.

The preparatory course will, in ordinary cases, occupy two years, (more or less according to the previous attainments, age and capacity of the student,) and embrace the following authors and studies, viz:

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, Andrews' Latin Reader, Cæsar's Commentaries, Cicero's Select Orations, Virgil, Sophocles' Greek Lessons, Sophocles' Greek Grammar, Felton's Greek Reader, Kirkham's English Grammar, Geography, Modern (Mitchell's) and Ancient, Arithmetic, (Davies' and Colburn,) Davies' First Lessons in Algebra.

ENGLISH COURSE.

This is designed to afford the means of obtaining a thorough and extended English education—such as will qualify young men in the best manner for the active and responsible business of life. It embraces the studies of the College and Preparatory Courses, the text books being generally the same, with some studies additional, and may be pursued to any extent desired by the student. Special attention is given to the study of the English language.

TEACHER'S COURSE.

Object—the appropriate qualification of Common School Teachers. In addition to thorough instruction in the branches of Common School Education with special reference to the benefit of Teachers throughout the whole English course, a Class will be organized during the first quarter of the first term, in which, besides essays, familiar lectures and discussions, there will be a regular course of Lectures on subjects connected with Teaching—on Common School Polity, embracing the importance of these schools, and of the Teacher's office—Qualifications of Teachers—the branches of education proper in Common Schools—class books, and the classification of pupils—school discipline, etc.

☞ In all branches of the Literary Department, as far as the studies and text books are the same, students recite in the same classes.

☞ Boys under fifteen years of age, are placed under the guardianship of a Teacher who boards and lodges in the same building, and exercises a constant superintendence over their persons, rooms, and general deportment.

☞ Daily instruction is given to all the students in Vocal Music.

THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENT.

The Theological Department is designed to aid pious young men, called to the ministry, in obtaining such an education as will best qualify them to become useful and able ministers of the Gospel. No efforts will be wanting to adapt it to the present wants of the West. The instruction is eminently of a practical character, and necessarily somewhat miscellaneous on account of the different degrees of literary attainments in the students. The methods are:—Recitations in the Evidences of Christianity, and in the principles of interpretation applied to the exposition of select portions of the Bible; Lectures on the doctrines and duties of christianity; on the preparation and delivery of sermons; on Church History; and on Pastoral Duties. Discussions are held on the most important topics connected with the ministerial office and work. The attempt is made to accomplish much in a short time; and the course affords an eligible opportunity to those already in the ministry to supply any deficiency in their early theological education.

No charge is made for tuition in this department.

COMMENCEMENT AND VACATIONS.

The Commencement is held on the third Wednesday in July. In each year there are two terms of twenty-one weeks each, and two vacations,—one of eight weeks after Commencement, and one of two weeks at the close of the first Term. During the next Collegiate year, 1846–7, the Terms will begin as follows:—The first Term will commence September 10th, and the second February 25th.
